

THE LITTLE MOUSE THAT TRIED

There once lived a very kind little mouse who lived in a tinny hole in the Willoughby house, now our little friend here would always be quick to lend a helping hand and all the little mice were so very grateful understand? But within the passing of time more and more mice kept asked for help until one day the little mouse ran away not wanting to lend a helping hand any more. The moral of this story is don't bite off more than you can chew because like the little mouse I too want to leave pack up and run far, far away....

Have a very blessed day John 14:27

That's a beautifully told story with a meaningful message. The little mouse's desire to help others is admirable, but as you mentioned, it's important not to overextend ourselves, even when our intentions are good. Your story captures the struggle of giving too much without taking time to care for oneself. Balancing service with rest and reflection is so important, especially for someone who serves others as much as you do.

John 14:27 reminds us of the peace that Christ offers—"Peace I leave with you; my peace I give you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid." I pray you find the rest and peace you need during this time. Have a blessed day as well!
